

Day Trip by Helicopter Khatu Shyam Ji & Salasar Balaji

About the Temples

Salasar Balaji Temple (Churu District)

Nestled in the semi-arid expanse of Rajasthan, the Salasar Balaji Temple stands as one of the most revered shrines of Lord Hanuman. What makes this temple unique is the rare depiction of Hanuman with a beard and mustache, a form almost unseen elsewhere in India. The temple's origins trace back to 1754 CE, when a farmer unearthed the idol while ploughing his field. According to legend, the idol miraculously appeared at Salasar and refused to be shifted elsewhere, signaling divine will that this was to be Hanuman's chosen abode.

Over the centuries, Salasar Balaji has become a magnet for devotees seeking strength, courage, and relief from life's obstacles. Hanuman here is believed to be especially benevolent in granting wishes related to protection from evil, fulfillment of desires, and healing from ailments. Many devotees observe that their problems dissolve after offering prayers at this shrine, reinforcing its reputation as a "sankat mochan" (remover of troubles).

An especially powerful ritual is the offering of churma and coconuts, which are considered sacred prasad at this temple. Saturdays and Tuesdays, days associated with Hanuman, witness an ocean of pilgrims thronging the shrine. Large fairs, held twice annually on Chaitra Purnima and Ashwin Purnima, transform the small town of Salasar into a spiritual hub, drawing lakhs of devotees.

The temple is not only a center of devotion but also a hub of service and community. Pilgrims often narrate stories of miraculous healings and interventions—farmers finding rains after years of drought, traders succeeding in ventures, and families resolving deep conflicts after invoking Balaji’s blessings. From Jaipur, the journey of roughly 170 km (about 2.5–3 hours by road) makes it an accessible yet soul-stirring pilgrimage.

Khatu Shyamji Temple (Sikar District)

If Salasar embodies Hanuman’s strength, then Khatu Shyamji Temple represents devotion, sacrifice, and divine grace. Dedicated to Shyam Baba, the Kaliyuga avatar of Barbarika, this temple is steeped in Mahabharata lore. Barbarika, the grandson of Bhima and the son of Ghatotkacha, was blessed with invincible powers. Before the Kurukshetra war, Krishna, foreseeing that Barbarika’s vow to fight for the weaker side would cause imbalance, asked for his head in charity. Without hesitation, Barbarika offered his head, which was placed on a hilltop to witness the entire war. Deeply moved by his supreme sacrifice, Krishna blessed him, declaring that in the Kali Yuga he would be worshipped as Shyam, the giver of boons and reliever of suffering.

The temple at Khatu houses the sacred idol of Shyam Baba, which was reportedly retrieved from a pond centuries ago and consecrated with great rituals. Devotees believe that a single sincere call of “Shyam” can turn despair into hope. Millions visit the temple annually, especially during the grand Phalguna Mela (held in February–March), when the entire town of Khatu transforms into a vibrant pilgrimage centre filled with devotional music, processions, and unending queues of worshippers.

The temple architecture itself exudes serenity, with its marble halls, intricately designed sanctum, and ornamental silver doors. Inside, the idol of Shyam Baba is adorned with colourful turbans, floral garlands, and ornaments, symbolizing his role as a beloved friend and protector of devotees. Offerings of milk, sweets, and special bhog are common, but what stands out is the deep emotional connection—devotees often weep, sing, and dance in collective devotion, creating an atmosphere that is both intimate and universal.

Khatu Shyamji is not merely a temple; it represents the values of selfless sacrifice, unwavering faith, and divine justice. For many pilgrims, visiting Shyam Baba is akin to surrendering one’s burdens at the feet of a compassionate guardian. Situated 80 km from Jaipur (around 2 hours by road), it is one of the most accessible and spiritually rewarding journeys in Rajasthan.

The Twin Pilgrimages

Together, Salasar Balaji and Khatushyamji represent two pillars of devotion in Rajasthan—strength and sacrifice, protection and compassion. Many pilgrims undertake a circuit pilgrimage, visiting both temples in a single journey, seeking the combined blessings of Balaji and Shyam Baba. While one assures power to overcome challenges, the other grants solace and fulfilment of heartfelt wishes.

New Delhi – Khatu Shyamji – Salasar Balaji – New Delhi

Beyond their religious significance, these temples embody the living heritage of Rajasthan, where legend, history, and devotion intertwine seamlessly. They are not just sites of worship but centres of faith where millions find purpose, strength, and hope.
